The position I am applying for, Vice President of Programs, resonates with my current qualifications as a political science student at the University of Delhi, pursuing honors. I worked as a volunteer for IPSA and IAPSS, which entitled me with the responsibility as a moderator during the sessions where the interaction with scholars assisted me in broadening my understanding of human interaction, which ameliorated my area of influence to certain pre-eminence when it comes to cultural interaction within the group.

In the academic realm, three research papers at the International Association of Political Science Students World Congress 2021 and the Institute of Nuclear Materials Management-The European Safeguards Research and Development Association Conference were prominent. I have been fortunate to participate in the innovative Demos Kratos project that secured the Tsinghua Global summer school Technical Innovation Award for the project through the dynamic research from my side that significantly contributed to this project. Furthermore, working continuously towards the ambition of becoming a diplomat spreading the influence of peace and tranquility, simultaneously bearing the torch of human rights, democracy and the rule of law.

The perseverance concerning the work assisted in securing the full-tuition scholarship award from The National Research University – Higher School of Economics for a masters. Two conferences of The Harvard Project for Asian and International Relations and my time with CYL and Raisina went beyond my expectations; I got the opportunity to interact with the German ambassador and Chilean ambassador to India. These fruitful engagements further assisted me in comprehending diverse perspectives on the geopolitical issues discussing NPT, State relations and Cultural engagement to do away with the conservative walls while paving the way for the new version of diplomatic globalization. These were all reasons for inspiration and future aspirations that I hold, and I believe that the experience of working as Vice President for Programs could be the ideal start. With these lines, I conclude.

Sincerely,
Harjeet Singh
